GIRL TOOK HER LIFE

Because Her Lover Had Believed False Reports About Her. (Herald Special.)

Denver, Colo., Sept. 14.—"Jim, why did you believe the falsehoods that were told about me? My ideal of true love is shattered and today I shall die. I am writing this between classes in school." This note was found today in the school book of Arlena Stivers, a sixteen-year-old high school student, who drank three ounces of carbolic acid late last night and killed herself. The note was addressed to James Sanford of Oklahoma City.
